

Offsider — Outreach Pack

Scripts to land the first 10 clients

03 June 2026

Scripts for landing the first 10 clients. Built around the research: lead with the missed-call audit, talk in jobs and dollars, NZ vernacular, one ask. Start with your warm list — Fantail HVAC, Ultra Fast Pest, Singh, 2in1/Welly Lawns — then work the local trade circle.

1. The missed-call audit (the opener that does the selling)

Ring the tradie's business number twice during work hours. If it rings out to voicemail, that's your whole pitch.

If it goes to voicemail — leave this, or text it:

Hey [name], it's Logan from Offsider. Just tried your number twice and got voicemail — no worries, you're flat out. That's exactly the problem we fix: when you can't pick up, we text the customer back in under a minute and book the job before they ring the next bloke. Worth a 10-min look? I'll show you on your own numbers.

If they pick up:

*"Quick one — when you're up a ladder or under a house and the phone goes, what happens to that call?" (let them answer — it's usually voicemail) "Right, so how many of those do you reckon you lose a week?" (they'll guess low) "We text them back in 47 seconds in your voice and book the job. Want me to show you?"*

2. Cold email sequence (3 touches)

Keep each under 120 words, one ask, real personalisation, NZ opt-out. Send from a real person, plain text.

Email 1 — the miss

Subject: tried your number twice, [first name]

Hey [first name],

Rang [business] twice this morning about [specific: a heat pump / your drainage work] and got voicemail both times. Not a dig — you're on the tools, that's the job.

But that's a customer who's now ringing the next name on Google. Offsider fixes exactly that: miss a call, we text them back in under a minute in your voice and book the job. Same system sends your invoices same-day and chases the late ones.

Worth a 10-minute look on your own numbers?

Logan

Reply STOP and I won't email again.

Email 2 — the number (3 days later)

Subject: what those missed calls add up to

[first name] — quick maths. If you miss ~8 calls a week and a third would've booked at ~$600 a job, that's roughly $80k a year walking to a competitor.

Offsider catches most of it for $249/mo. One recovered job pays for it.

Here's a 60-second demo: [link]. Keen to set you up this week?

Email 3 — the close (4 days later)

Subject: last one from me

No worries if the timing's off, [first name]. If you ever want your phone to stop sending customers to voicemail, I'll have you live in a week — $1,200 to build it around your business, then $200/mo, 24/7 support.

Happy to do a free missed-call audit either way. Just say the word.

3. SMS / DM (Facebook trade groups, supplier contacts)

Hey [name] — I run Offsider, we stop tradies losing jobs to voicemail (text the customer back in 47s + book them in). Reckon you miss many calls in a week? Happy to show you free on your own numbers.

4. Supplier-counter / trade-group flyer (one-liner + QR)

Headline: Losing jobs to voicemail? Find out how much — free.

Sub: Offsider answers your missed calls in 47 seconds and books the job. Built for Kiwi tradies.

5. Who to hit first (warm → cold)

1. Existing Emporom clients in trades — Fantail HVAC (Chris), Ultra Fast Pest, Singh Pest, 2in1/Welly Lawns. Warmest, fastest yes.
2. Their referrals — "know any other tradies drowning in calls/admin?"
3. Local Wellington/Porirua trades within 30 min — door-knock + missed-call audit.
4. Supplier counters — Plumbing World, Mico, Corys, Ideal Electrical (flyer + calculator).
5. Bookkeepers / Xero partners — they feel the late-invoice pain for their tradie clients; rev-share for intros.

Rule: deposit / setup fee up front, always. No work before it lands.
